held in the State, and will thank its friends to help it.

LET THE MINORITY HAVE REPRESENTATION.

There has never been a time in the history of the State when there was deeper interest felt in the approaching nominating conventions. This is true whether we have reference to the more responsible and honorable and lucrative positions or to the smaller and less profitable offices. There is an abundant crop of candidates. We rejoice in this evident interest manifested in public questions and in the selection of suitable candidates for the positions to be filled. It argues well for the success of the party in the November elections. Unless the people were confident of victory they would not be so anxious for nominations. Whenever there is a close contest over the nominations in the Democratic party, there is invariably an interesting campaign and never any danger of Democratic defeat in North Carolina. The large number of candidates this year is a security against apathy, if we can judge by the past. Honor and self-respect alike forbid that a defeated candidate and his supporters should sulk in their tents.

Aside from apathy which is an ever-present danger, we see but one danger to Democratic success, and that is this: in the anxiety of friends to secure the nomination of their favorites, injustice and wrong may be done to minorities. For example: A man in Cherokee county may desire to see a certain gentleman—say Mr. B.—nominated for Congress. Two-thirds or three-fourths of the voters may also favor Mr. B's nomination, but one-third or one-fourth may be equally as anxious to secure the nomination of Mr. C. Now, let us suppose that in the County Convention a delegate rises and moves that all the delegates be instructed to vote for Mr. B for Congress, and the motion is carried by a majority vote AGAINST THE PROTEST OF THE ONE-THIRD OR ONE-FOURTH who favor Mr. C. Is this right? Has not a great wrong been done to the minority? And is there any excuse or palliation for it? We think not. We believe that every Democratic voter has a right to register his opinion, and that this right is as sacred when he is in the minority as when he is in the majority. The Democrats of Cherokee, in this supposed case, ought to have ascertained the relative strength of the two candidates, and divided the delegates to the nominating convention in that proportion. This is the only fair way of doing equal and exact justice—and nothing except equal and exact justice is truly Democratic.

The Wake county Democrats have wisely adopted the rule of giving to every candidate the strength in the nominating conventions to which he is entitled.

Two years ago there was a close fight in the Wake county convention over the gubernatorial candidates. A majority of the delegates were for Capt. S. B. ALEXANDER, but a very strong minority favored GOVERNOR FOWLE. There was a feeling among some of the supporters of ALEXANDER to carry a motion instructing all the delegates to support him for Governor. This would have been grossly unjust and unfair to Gov. FOWLE's supporters. Wiser counsel prevailed, and the vote of the county was divided upon a basis of the strength of the two candidates. The rights of the minority were respected as fully as were the rights of the majority. Every man left that convention feeling that he had been treated fairly.

Wake has established for itself a precedent of Right and Justice. The CHRONICLE hopes to see the day when minority representation will be allowed in every county and in every township. Failure to guarantee that right is the chief danger, as we see it, to Democratic harmony and Democratic success.

THEN AND NOW.

Under Democratic rule in the United States, during the first half century, all classes prospered equally. Under Jefferson's policy of special privileges to none, the farmers prospered equally with the business men and artisans. The "era" was one of continued "good feeling," and was aptly described by the old lines on Rome:

"Then none was for a party;
Then all were for the state;
Then the great man helped the poor;
And the poor man loved the great;
Then the lands were fairly portioned;
Then the spoils were fairly sold;
The Romans were like brothers
In the brave days of old.

But during the past quarter of a century, under Republican rule, special privileges have been granted to a class. They have grown rich at the expense and impoverishment of the many until the words of the old Roman poem are again applicable:

Now Roman is to Roman
More hateful than a foe,
And the Tribunes dare the high,
And the Fathers grind the low!"

THEY WILL NEVER DO IT.

(Statesville Landmark.)

We do not share the apprehension of some, that the staid, thinking farmers of North Carolina will allow themselves to be led off by a man who comes down here from Pennsylvania, assumes to put himself at the head of the farmers of this State and advises them to disregard the color line and to turn their backs on all those candidates for their favor except the few whom he may name to them as fit to be trusted! Our people are essentially homogeneous. They have lived here together from the beginning, following their various vocations and cultivating the spirit of fraternity and good neighborhood—one man being as good as another so long as he behaved himself. We need now no crusader coming among us to sow strife; to teach that some one class or another is a people all apart to itself, the enemy of every other class and every other class its enemy. The farmers of North Carolina will not enlist under this new banner, in the hands of one unknown to them, until they get ready to belie all the traditions of their forefathers.

POLITICAL GOSSIP.

Mr. Joshua Perry requests us to say that his name will go before the county convention for the nomination of Senator. He will vote, he says, for Vance for U. S. Senator, and for a Railroad Commission.—Franklin Press.

adj. thas. w. mcguffin. Serving his second term, he is faithful to his constituents as he was faithful to his farm interests, when nominated the first time for Congress. No eulogistic notices, marked and "planted" where they do the most good circulate in this district for him. Here at his home we know his capacity and his worth, and the district contains no truer son. Snugly ensconced in his humble but happy home on the banks of the Atlantic Ocean where cold breezes and the soft waving of the waves would contribute more to his mutual tranquility than legislative debates. Yet in every campaign since the war has his clear voice been called into requisition, and nobly and unselfishly he has always responded to such calls by the urgent needs of the Democratic party.—Burgaw Herald.

It is a mistake. Rev. M. H. Tuttle will not leave LaGrange to become pastor of the Kinston M. E. church.

SUMMER VACATION.

Right at this time of the year nearly every one is contemplating taking a trip of some kind.

One may think they have all the clothes needed for a trip anywhere, but still there are many little things that escape one's thoughts until the last moment.

No matter whether one's requirements are great or small, they will naturally consider where to go to get what they need.

Well, this time we are not going to mention a single article or even hint at prices.

We will just cover the whole ground by reminding everybody that our place is headquarters for everything that a person leaving home could desire for their outfit.

To those of the city, and too far off to run into Raleigh for shopping in person, we respectfully suggest our MAIL ORDER DEPARTMENT. To all enquires by mail, the most thorough information will be given. On all cash orders of $5.00 and over parcels delivered free.

Haywood White Sulphur Springs.

Always a favorite with Eastern people, now with A. J. BOWEN as Manager, all may look out for a good season. This resort has greater altitude than any other mountain resort. The fare, of course, with Mr. Bowen at the head of the tables, will be splendid. Fine sulphur and cool spring water; bracing, invigorating air, refreshing nights, electric bells, moderate rates, &c., are some of the attractions. If you contemplate visiting the mountains this season, by all means go to Haywood.
